FROSTHACK-2021

Our team - Straight of the couch, consists of 3 members, team leader Prachee Mathur, and members Titiksha Behal and G.K.V.Snigdha.

We aim on making an event managing website, which helps people conduct events in a more organized way and also invites participation from all over the internet. Our website acts as an open event planner, which helps the organizers and participants with the new concept of online events, due to the COVID-19 conditions.

We would be working with CSS and HTML on the front end, and would be using Python for our backend. The framework we would be using is Flask.

With COVID-19 on a rise, all the educational institutions have been shifted online. This has led to a lesser interactive and lesser interesting atmosphere for the students. And due to lack of proper management and awareness of the procedure of online events, many people have been feeling isolated and burdened with no particular stress relieving methods. To tackle these problems, our website acts as a guide as well as a helper for those who are keen and looking forward to such fun activities, by giving them a chance to put their ideas and events on a larger scale and invite more participation.

Our website gives the option for a person to start registering an event, asking for different fields like name, event description, and a streaming link, if any. It then generates a unique code for the event which could be used to register for the event by anyone who is interested. The home page gives information about ongoing, upcoming and even past events. Our website allows participants as well as mentors/organizers to login, where the rest of the team of organizers could join in. The email ID input taken during submission of form for registration is added to the mailing list, and communication within the organizer team is conveyed by mail to the mailing list. Similarly, for any details regarding the event are conveyed by a similar mailing list of the participants.

It also consists of various important features of an event - like helping the host to find key speakers for the event to be not only fun, but also be informative for all attendees, and sources for Sponsorship based on the previous registered event sponsors. Our website could also be used as a source of ideas for organizers looking for new and innovative ideas based on previously conducted common online activities.
